The natural qualities of the travertine stone could present certain cavities, variations in color tone, grains and texture.

An extension to the Ark series, these stoneware sculptures unite a trilogy of elements – classical architecture being reinterpreted into modern design, skilled stonemasons' precision in polishing intricately carved details by hand, and the beauty of raw travertine stone. Naturally occurring geological patterns present in travertine, make each sculpture piece unique.

In the Spiral sculpture, the repetition of horizontal lines integrated into a curved ascending profile is poetically juxtaposed against the Flight sculpture which emphasises straight lines throughout.
